Melting The Ice: A Traditional Regency Romance (A Series Of Elements Book 2)

Synopsis

Along with her triplet sisters, Lady Beaujolais Winslow is a celebrated beauty, but after five seasons she has yet to find a match she finds tolerable. Since her father refuses to arrange a marriage, it is rumoured in London society that she is holding out for a duke. Benedict Stanton, Duke of Yardley, vowed never to marry again when his first marriage ended in a scandalous divorce. Having retreated to the country for nearly a decade, he is thought to be a cold-hearted recluse. Now faced with leaving his dukedom to the Crown for lack of an heir, he sets out to find a bride in a manner more suited to generations pastâ”through his solicitor. When Lady Beaujolais receives one of the Dukeâ”™s impersonal proposals, she rejects it out of hand and in considerable anger. Little does she know she is soon to be forced into his company every dayâ |

Customer Reviews

I couldnâ”™t put this book down until I finished. Lady Beaujolais Winslow is talented, engaging, beautiful, and considered an incomparable. But she has met no one on the marriage mart that she wants to marry. Because she has turned away so many offers, her nickname is â”™ICEâ”™ on the betting books. The Duke of Yardleyâ”™s first marriage ended in a scandalous divorce. He wants nothing to do with society and has sworn he will never marry again. But Stanton's heir dies and he finds he must marry to carry out the obligations of his title; he asks his solicitor to handle the selection and the proposal process. His choice is Lady Beaujolais Winslow. She is so insulted with this excuse for a proposal that, with little thought, she turns it down and sends the solicitor packing with choice words of her own to deliver to his employer. Of course, she has no way of knowing that the very man she turned down would ride into her life the very next day. Benedict Stanton, the Duke of Yardley, is not used to having people tell him "no" who turns down the opportunity to be a Duchess? He is driven by curiosity to find out more about her. However, his priority is to get his favorite horse to the Easton Stables. Lord Easton's stables are famous for horse breeding, and Yardley has been friends with Easton since Eaton. Lord Easton also happens to be Lady Beaujolais' cousin – something Yardley is unaware of – and approved of her reasons to turn down the proposal. However, he knows both of them well and firmly believes that these two would be well suited, if they could just get past this rather unfortunate misstep of Yardley's. To that end, when Yardley arrives, Lord Easton and his wife decide to make introductions of Jolie and Benedict without benefit of their titles. Sparks fly.
