Customer Reviews

I moved into a retirement community surrounded by a combination of 41 executive and championship golf courses. By this time next year there'll probably be another two or three courses added to the roster. This does NOT include any of the neighboring courses outside the community property. Needless to say the pressure to take up golf as a lifestyle was... well... persistent. So, at 65 and seriously out of shape, I bought my first(preowned)set of golf clubs. Sadly, it's been all downhill since. I've tried lessons, peer advice (some solicited). I've traveled down the "it's-your-equipment-not-you" road (equipment A's driver will straighten out that drive and add 30 yards; manufacturer B's breakthrough putter design will turn your ball into a hole magnet); attach this device to your club, your arm, your wrist, your... wherever. In the end, the 19th hole was the only thing bringing me back for my weekly dose of frustration and humiliation. I stuffed my head with all those "keep your head down; slow down your swing; hit down on the ball; aim more left or right to compensate for the slice/hook" mantras. I even wrote a short story (did I mention I'm a writer?) about life as a golf ball! I figured a sympathetic character study from the ball's point of view might give me an edge. Honest- check out "Pocket Wars" at Kindle. Ten years have passed, I'm now 75, still fat, and my stomach keeps me from bending over to pick up the ball. Like the man said, "If I'd known I was going to live this long I would've taken better care of myself." I've since managed to acquire a mini-library of golf swing "how-to" books on my Kindle Fire and my golf cart gets to the 19th hole without any guidance from me.
